

ShAnnie

Eclectic Americana Pop Folk, with Celtic and Spanish Undertones...

Shan + Annie = ShAnnie

The duo comprised of Shan Kowert and Annie Acton, "naturally" formed in 2005, when it was obvious that not only their spirits, but their voices belonged together.

Shan has a timbre to his voice that will take you back to Gordon Lightfoot and Dan Folgerberg, and Annie is reminiscent of Patsy Cline and Linda Ronstadt, she too has an Hispanic heritage and can belt out a Spanish tune like any other Mariachi cantador.

ShAnnie's music is soulful, lyrical and mesmerizing. They write with a cinematic approach. It's descriptive, leaving you with a feeling that you are a part of the song. A ShAnnie performance brings the whole experience to fruition. It ascends the music to a high cescendo. While Shan is crosspicking the acoustic strings of the guitar like no other; Annie is capturing your eyes with her dramatic passion. No matter who is taking the vocal lead, the other is graciously releasing a harmony that will chime in your ears and your hearts.

ShAnnie will not only lure you in, but they will leave you wanting more...

"The Station is one of those discs you put in the player when you have guests over and everything has to be perfect."

---Lucky Boyd, Co-Founder, My Texas Music

"ShAnnie...Like cosmopolitan purveyors of fine wine at a hip cabaret... with rich vocals and dramatic stylings.."

----Bob Himer, Western Trail House Concert

"This is one of those groups that you never get tired of listening to."
